These teachings seem to continually elude me. It is frustrating to listen and read through extensive words when I really just want to learn how to use The Zohar and understand Kabbalah and use it in my life. I'm tired of sifting through lots of unimportant filler in many books that are trying to teach practical uses. Rav Laitman and his teachers just drag things out. I guess there is a reason for this but I lose interest.

In Unlocking the Zohar Dr. Michael Laitman turns the, until recently, hidden mysteries of the Zohar into a great adventure of discovery that anyone can join. Using quotes from The Zohar, Rav Laitman takes us on a journey of understanding ourselves, what actually directs our lives and how much we can gain control over the way daily events impact our lives. The bedrock message is contained in 'All Are His Words'. The message is that there is none else besides Him. All and everything we encounter is the Creator speaking to us through all our senses, if we learn to listen that is. The Selected References in Praise of The Zohar sets forth and clarifies the importance, the means and relevance of The Zohar in daily study and essentially the ultimate reason for study of The Zohar is that it actually delivers into our hands the means to discover the Creator. I love this book!

Another fantastic book to help with the studies of Kabbalah. We all need to help our troubled world and the relationships that have caused us to forget thinking about others and only ourselves. This book helps teach the value and meaning of love your friend as yourself.

This book is a pre-requisite to comprehend "The Zohar". Explains the basic structures of the Sefirot as well for whom, why, and what for was written; and never the less, the state of mind in which to approach the reading of "The Zohar".
